THE CONTITUE WELFING.

The gentlemen of the Democratic County Committee met on Saturday last and gave their attention to the party's business. They are to be complimented or baving had in mind in all of their siderations the voters' welfare and the party's best interest. Their meet there was unusual interest manifested They considered several matters of amrules by which the party is governed and they adopted a code which is concise and clear, and especially commendamake the party's affairs open and above board. We therefore commend them in particular, for their adoption of the third section, by which they would provide for an open ballot in conventionsan important step in the direction of If a delegate is elected by the people to represent them in the selection of a candidate, or for some definite purpo e it will be attisfactory for them to know out, and it will be less embarrassing to delegates, as the actions of no one can itself to the selection of candidates. This system will be much fairer to the candidates than the secret ballot sys tem It will result in general good, in that the party will have the respect of the people for a firm stand for ch in, open political methods These new rules have been in ale

RECLIP'S AND EXPENDITIES.

Here are some plain figures that in borne in mind, will help to an index standing of the tailft question. In the fiscal year ending June 1 8500 the revenues of the buried State.

the revenues of the United State $103 963 081, and the expenditures 4, 5-619 86, leaving a surplus of $10 , 41 196 In the autumn of 1590 Congress passed

"a bill to reduce the revenue and equil ize duties on imports and for other put poses" known as the McKinley bil which had the immediate effect of iducing the revenues about thursy-more millions the first year it was in full oper ation and by 1511 they were reduced to $372,502,405, a reduction trora 1500 of $91,000,000

This would very nearly have disposed of the surplus, but at the same time that Congress reduced the revenues it increased the expenditures. These were $57,000 000 more in 1892 than in 1890 $46,000,000 more in 1593 than in 1512 and 1894, when the recepts were but $172 502 495 the expenditutes were $142 000 758 thus converting the surpling of John B. Gable, a prominent young business man of Chambersburg, who mysteriously disappeared from home last week, while suffering severely from grippe, was found sick at a hotei in Philadelphia. His family were afraid he had become deranged and the police in the cities of the State were looking for him. He knew nothing of his going away. Mr. Dancan, chairman of the commit tee, explained the changes to be made The third section, being the only radical of the committeemen, all of whom favored the measure, believing that it will prove much more satisfactory to the people, the delegates, and the candidates, than the The members of the Carlisle School Board, accompanied by City Superintendent Shearer, are on a tour of inspection of public schools in nearby cities: It is the intention of the board to erect a $20,000 building in that place. old method of voting in convention by secret ballot. He spoke of the misery of the heathen world, of the inadequacy of their own re-ligion to give relief, the all-sufficient na-ture of Christianity to meet the needs of every class and nation: he described the evangelistic work and the new industrial avangeistic work and the new industrial methods introduced, and told of the visit literary work accomplished by the missionaries. The Bible, he said, has been translated into 364 languages and can now be read by nine-tenths of the world's population in their own language. Dr. lation in their own language. Electric Britters.—Electric Bitters is a medicine solved for any season, but perhaps more generally needed, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. THE GARDEN ON THE FARM. Select the earliest, warmest spot of ground available Put on a good coating of manure and turn it under in the fall, plowing it up in narrow lands from 10 to 20 ft wide, so that it will drain off early in spring Sow everything in long rows, in order that most of the work can be done with the horse, and you will find it a great deal easier to work than where it is planted in little beds which have to be worked by hand

As soon as the ground is fit to work in the spring, sow peas, using one of the early smooth sorts. They may he in the ground some time before they show themselves, but they will come up The wrinkled peas are not as hardy and may rot if they do not germinate soon after planting. Onions also must be in the ground as early as possible and get a good start while the weather is cool, for they grow poorly when planted in hot weather Beets, carrots turnips, parsuips, vegetable oysters, lettuce and radishes will also stand some frost and can be put in soon after the early peas The first sowing of radishes is apt to be wormy and not as good as those which are grown later in the season

Early cabbage can be set out as soon s hard freezing is over, if the plants have been well hardened off. For late cabbage sow the seed in the open ground early in May and transplant to the per manent ground from June 15 to July 1 The greatest enemy of the capbage is the green slug or cabbage worms, for which there are a great many remedies Slug shot is probably used more than anything else, for it is cheap, easily applied and does the work effectively Cuih flower, one of the most delicious of vege tables, is grown all too little. Like cibbage, it does best on a cool moist soil and is just as easily grown as that crop The early crop is not as satisfictory as the full crop, for good heads will not form in very hot weather but it plants are set early they will head up before hot weather begins. For fall crop treat the same as for late cubbage. As soon as the heads begin to form dray the leaves together and pm or the them so as to keep out the sun and render the heads white and tender. The heads should be cut as soon as they reach maturity for if left a few days too long they will be come loose and tough

Sweet corn will stand about as mucl cold as our common held corn, but I do not think it is quite as readily germin ited in a cold soil. Tomatoes are very tender and should not be set in the open ground until all danger of frost is over The same is true of beans and especially the limas Cucumbers, melons and squashes need a warm, rich soil where they will grow steadily from the start Plant them early, but not too early, for they seldom recover from a theck received when young I do not like to plant them in hills raised three or four inches above the level I would rather have them a little below so they will not dry out as readily and are not as apt to be injured by insects. The striped flea beetle is the most common enemy Its ravages can be prevented by dusting the plants with air-slaked lime, land pluster, road dust or any fine powder, from the time they come through the ground until they get about the third pair of leaves, after which they will renally take core of themselves The beetle is not affected

No garden is complete without asparagus, and it will yield more tood than any other crop A small bed will supply family the entire season Put on a good dressing of manure, all that can be plow ed under When the soil is prepared, turn out furrows with a shovel plow three feet or three and one half feet apart and at least arx inches deep. In these furrows place the pluits (one or two year olds) about 15 inches apart, apreading the roots nicely so that the crowns will be at least four inches below the surface. Then fill in the fullows and the work is done. All the addition al labor required is cultivation to keep the weeds down The following spring clear off the tops and put on a good dressing of manure and fork it in with a common manure fork, being careful not to injure the plants. The bed can be cut some the second year, say for three weeks or a month, but it will not yald a full crop until the fourth or fifth year Always cut the stalks clean, no matter what they are, so that when the bed grows up it will all come up evenly Treat the bed the same each succeeding Celery is another crop which is become year, and it is good for a life time ing more largely cultivated every year It delights in a cool, moist, louny soil, in fact, plenty of moisture is one of the essentials in raising a good crop-Celery seed germinates very slowly often being two or three weeks in com ing up. Taking Care of the Hair Some people think that too much brush ing of the hair harms the roots and kills ing of the hair harms the roots and kills the young hair. There is undoubtedly some truth in this, for a very still brush irritates the scalp to bleeding quite often and that is very bad. One woman, who has beautiful hair, says she uses a silk handkerchief on her head. The parts the hair and rubs the scalp with the soft silk and then takes the long strands of hur between folds of the silk and rubs them vigorously. It takes out the superfilious grease and much of the dust, and leaves the hair shuing like sain. Silk is best because it is soft and will not breik and roughen the hair.

It has been said of the "new journal ism" that whatever there is in it which is good is not new, and whatever is new is not good. But it carries its own antidote. The new journalism papers neutralize each other just as two active poisons may together make a useful medicine. For instance, we have one new journal in New York publish an interview one day with a cabinet officer or a king or some one. Another new journal the next day shows that the interview was a "fake" and produces a certificate to that effect from the interviewed. Then new journal No 1 replies with a certificate from the interviewed that the interview was all right. Then new journal No 2 comes back with proof that the certificate is a forgery, and so it goes on in a very harmiese manner. Let the I'alksblat take courage!—Ballo Sun J B Stott
